Tanya Donovan

DVM, DACVIM (Internal Medicine)

Tanya loves being in a role where she can make a difference to the lives of her patients and their human family members.

After having received her degree in veterinary medicine at Tufts University in 2004, Tanya went on to complete a one year internship in small animal medicine and surgery at Angel Memorial Hospital in Boston, Massachusetts. Then a residency in small animal internal medicine at Tufts, followed by her recognition as a board certified internal medicine specialist in 2008.

Besides having worked as a clinical professor at Auburn University, Tanya frequently lectures at national and international conferences as well as providing continuing education lectures on a variety of topics to local veterinarians and veterinary technicians.

Her clinical research projects have focused on endocrine diseases, including diabetes and hyperadrenocorticism. She has also published several articles in veterinary journals.

Tanya lives with her husband, their two dogs and cat. In her spare time you can find her cooking up a storm, going on neighborhood walks with her dogs or playing board games with her husband.
